BSEC extends negative-equity adjustment horizon through 2030

In reporting published on 11 November about its 10 November meeting, BSEC permitted brokers and merchant banks to adjust existing negative equity progressively through 2030. From 2027, the institutions must provide against at least 25% of their September 2026 balances annually. The measures also restrict fresh margin lending to affected accounts and prohibit cash-dividend distributions by participating intermediaries. The decision is regulatory relief, not an exemption from provisioning.

BSEC permits limited rebalancing in negative-equity BO accounts

Under the BSEC measures reported on 11 November, BO accounts carrying negative equity may sell existing shares and reinvest proceeds in new A-category stocks. They may not receive additional margin loans, and block-market sales are restricted. Interest on margin loans and portfolio-management charges cannot be imposed during the adjustment period. This is conditional trading relief for affected accounts rather than unrestricted access to new leverage.
